Commission, CRB discuss housing

By JEFF BROWN

BELLE GLADE Belle Glade City Commission and members of the Palm Beach County Community Relations Board met Monday night, November 1, to discuss the housing problems in the southwest section of the city.

The two boards, which often found themselves at odds in the past, discussed the problems and possible solutions calmly, with the only hint of anger coming from political activist Al Zack, who attended part of the meeting.

The Community Relations Board and the city commissioners examined the four proposals the board had made to the county commission and discussed ways in which the board could help the city meet those recommendations.

The county commission earlier this year had adopted the recommendations and authorized the board to meet with the city commission and offer its assistance.

"We want to keep peace and harmony in our community," said Community Relations Board Chairman Carlton Bryant. "We consider Palm Beach County as one big community. We want to do everything we can to make the community more harmonious."

Rabbi Alan Sherman, the board's vice chairman, said the county is offering a "coordination of services" to help the city in its efforts in the southwest area.

The board, which Bryant said has met in Belle Glade more than any other municipality, was primarily concerned with the SW Fifth through SW Seventh Street areas.

Bryant said the board didn't make up the name "snake pit" for the area, but that residents in the area had called it that.

City Community Development Director Remar M. Harvin said the only local person he had heard call the area the "snake pit" was Al Zack, and that other residents call it "the Fifth Street area."

Bryant said he would call the area the "slum section." Then I know I'm right."

Mayor Thomas L. Altman said most of the board's recommendations were good suggestions but added that "virtually every item" on the list was already recognized by the city and being worked on before the board recommended them.

The board was founded after the 1980 riots in Miami to promote harmony among the various ethnic and racial groups in the county. Altman objected to the way the coastal media covered the board's proceedings in the Belle Glade area.

"The inflammatory way the press covered it was counter to that (the board's mission)," said Altman.

Bryant said the board recognized that media coverage had hurt the relationship between the two bodies, and said that was the reason the coast television stations and The Post were asked not to attend the meeting.

He also admitted the board may suffer from a lack of information from the city, saying that the high population density in the Fifth Street area made it a "prime target" for crime, but that the board didn't investigate the crime rate.

We're more concerned with having a people-oriented thing," he said.

Altman addressed the board's recommendations one by one, telling the board what action or objection the city had taken.

The board had recommended that the city establish a task force to revise the housing code. The city recently completed a review and revision of the city housing code, a process that Harvin had been working on for about a year, said Altman.

He said he thinks the new code will be more enforceable and realistic.

"We're constantly faced with the dilemma 'what do we do?'" said Altman.

Board members who have toured the Fifth Street area could see that the city could probably condemn many buildings and order evacuation, but the city would then be faced with the problem of relocating the displaced residents, he said.

To meet that problem the city has been working with the United States Housing and Urban Development program for seven years. This year the city will be working through the county Community Development program instead of directly with HUD, and is anticipating an increase in revenues for the projects, said Altman.

The city has been allocated about $400,000 annually from HUD, but, working through the county this year, is hoping to see that increased potentially up to $70,000, he said.

He said Harvin has been pursuing other funding sources when they become available, but admitted that there is only so far the limited resources granted the city from the federal government and its own sources will go.

He said the city has been using available funds to purchase rehabilitated housing and upgrade neighborhoods, mostly in the fringes of the Fifth Street area, under HUD's guidance and consent.

"It's necessary to understand the complexities of the housing situation," said Altman. "It didn't get that way overnight, and we have found, after beating our heads, that we can't correct it overnight."

He added that the city's Community Development staff is now trained and "prepared to tackle a bigger bite out of that apple."

Bryant said the board didn't know of the progress the city was making and said that may be the problem with the coastal media as well. Altman and Bryant both agreed that reports on the progress the city was making in meeting the goals and recommendations could possibly be sent to the board for release to the media on the coast, thus improving the city's "image problem."

Bryant and Sherman also suggested the city establish a local Community Relations Board. Such a board could eliminate "90 percent of the problems" Bryant said. He added that there are going to be open spots for Commissioner Bill Altman to appoint to the county board, and said the Glades area needs some "serious residents" on it.

Sherman suggested that a local resident appointed to a governor's commission be asked to assist in "political problems" such as obtaining grants under new federal programs.

"Like many areas, we don't have a surplus of folks beating our door down to serve," said Harvin of the suggestion to appoint a local Community Relations Board.

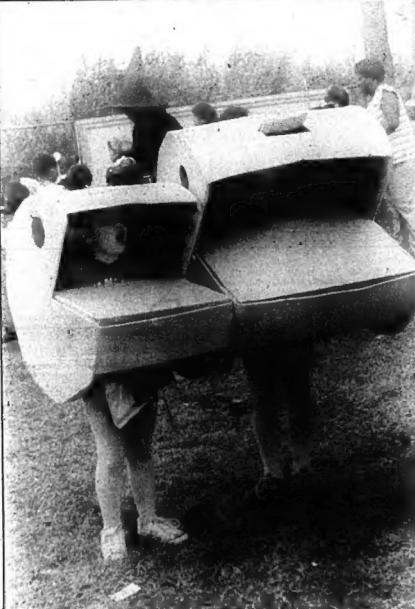

Altman questioned whether the fact that the city commission appointed the board would hurt its credibility, but both Bryant and Sherman said that once the city's residents see that the board members are serious and not a "rubber stamp" for the commission, they would accept it.

Bryant also suggested that Zack be appointed to the board so he could work for adoption of his proposals.

Zack suggested at the meeting that the city sell the golf course to the county in exchange for 43 acres of land to the southwest of the city. The county bought that land for development into a recreation area, but no work has been done on it so far. Zack suggested the city could use the land for development into housing.

The county can't develop housing on the land

Pilot wins suit

BELLE GLADE Commercial beekeepers will not receive compensation for losses they say were caused by aerial spraying for mosquitoes by a Belle Glade firm in September 1981.

The spraying was carried out between Sept. 4 through Sept. 7, 1981, by Environmental Aviation Services Inc., which was named as the defendant in the suit along with pilot Howard Baker.

A jury of three men and three women deliberated just 65 minutes Monday before reaching the verdict in the $160,000 suit filed in Palm Beach County Circuit Court.

The suit was filed by beekeepers Horace Bell, William Belcher, William Cobb and Debra Cobb. The four charged that spraying by the Palm Beach County Mosquito Control was done "contrary to accepted industry standards" for the use of the pesticide Dibrom.

The beekeepers maintained that the federally controlled pesticide Dibrom can only be sprayed when the wind velocity is 10 mph or less, and the wind was actually eleven and a half mph when the spraying was performed.

They said the $80,000 paid Barker for the three-day spraying sweep was unnecessary because the mosquitoes never posed a health hazard and most would have died naturally in nine days, anyway.

Mr. Boyd, the attorney for Environment

Aviation said the beekeepers did not tell anyone where their hives were.

"They could have covered their hives or moved them," he said.

He said the beekeepers had ample warning to take precautions that would have prevented the death of the bees.

Harvey Richardson, attorney for the beekeepers, said moving the hives was impossible with such short notice, and covering them would have suffocated the bees.

"We had a fair judge and he gave us a fair trial," said Richardson, "but we were not allowed to give the jury information that might have influenced its decision."

"What the jury found was that beekeepers have a definite concern and they have the right to raise their bees. But there is also going to be government that is concerned with the general health and safety of the community," said Boyd.

The defendants argued that they were compelled under a 1981 court order, issued by Circuit Judge Vaughn Rudnick to spray in the early evening as they did. The beekeepers support nighttime spraying, which, they say, is more effective in killing mosquitoes and less damaging to bees.

The Palm Beach County Commission, in late September 1981 ordered that all spraying be done after dark, in compliance with the beekeepers' wishes.

Strang's decision expected soon

BELLE GLADE Tommy Strang's decision on whether or not to accept an offer to hire on as Belle Glade's city manager isn't expected until after next week's meeting of the board of directors of Briley, Wild and Associates, according to Belle Glade Mayor Thomas L. Altman.

Strang, an engineer with the company, was offered the job about three weeks ago and told the city commissioners at the time that he would make a decision within two weeks. Altman said he now expects that decision to take another week.

He added that he thinks Strang will probably take the job as Rolfe Wagner's replacement. Wagner left Wednesday, Oct. 27, to take a job as city manager of Aztec, New Mexico.

"I feel, from the way (Strang's) coming, real confident that he's coming," said Altman.

STUDENTS in the West Area Minority Potentially Gifted Program at Gove Elementary recently participated in the Academic Games Linguistic Tournament held at PBG-Glades.

Perspective

City prudent in fee increases

The increases to the deposits and hookup fees for Belle Glade city utilities that the city commission recently approved was purposely held lower than estimates indicated necessary, in the hopes that it would do the job.

It might.

But we doubt it. Doubling the deposit to $40 probably will have no effect on the average delinquent utility customer. The average delinquent bill is $63.39, and those customers who actually have their city utilities discontinued owe an average of $72.13.

We don't think someone who is willing to lose a $20 deposit by skipping out on a $70 bill will hesitate too long to do the same to a $40 deposit.

We wish it weren't so, but reality makes us think otherwise.

Still, we understand the commissioners' problem of increasing the burden on the majority of customers, who are honest and pay their bills on time.

Is it fair to tax them excessively to deal with a "few deadbeats," as Mayor Thomas L. Altman phrased it.

The commissioners probably acted prudently in doubling the $20 water service deposit, for if it doesn't work, they can always go back and raise it.

We hope they won't have to.

CoTran adds route

BELLE GLADE—CoTran buses stop at a new location in the city starting this week, giving residents the opportunity to park their automobiles while they use the bus.

Since Monday, Nov. 1, CoTran buses providing service to West Palm Beach and various points in the Glades area, stop on South Canal Street behind the Ben Franklin store. Users of the service can park automobiles in the parking lot and use the bus, said CoTran Road Supervisor Gabriel Santamaria.

Buses to West Palm Beach stop at the location at 6:42 a.m. and 11:52 a.m.

the Poly-Fonator, a device that lets the children hear the word as well as feel the vibrations when they repeat the sound whether or not they have correctly repeated the word," Ms. Cook told the parents and staff. She said they had good success with the use of the Poly-Fonator.

The Belle Glade Business and Professional Women's Club donated half-the funding to buy the TTY System for Gove Elementary, Lake Shore Middle, as well as purchase the system personally for Rosa Nash, Gove Elementary teacher for the hearing impaired.

Rosa Nash joined the group that adapted to deaf children for the television set. She told them that until recently deaf hearing impaired individuals could not get a closed caption feature for hearing impaired news programs. Now ABC offers "World News Tonight" in closed caption.

Mrs. Nash said she has been totally deaf for 10 years. "I had a very hard time the first few years adjusting. I thought I was going to go crazy." She told the group that even now she has some problems.

"Before I got the TTY System, if I wanted to tell someone something, I had to get in my car and go to their house to tell them. I made a lot of long distance calls to family when I first got the system. I thought my phone bill was going to be very high, but it wasn't," she said.

Mrs. Nash was the Belle Glade postmaster for 10 years before becoming the instructor at Gove. She has been the deaf instructor at Gove Elementary for 10 years.

Save your old punctuation marks

Anybody who collects obsolete thingsamabobs is overjoyed to acquire a half-dozen of them free in a single week.

I am overjoyed. Last week I added six unbroken apostrophes in a single day to my collection of antique punctuation marks. Picture them all up in one place at one time: Hallows'en.

Eight unbroken 's is quite a rare find. If there's anything rarer than the 'in Hallows'en, it's the 'in today.' You have to be pretty old to remember when today was spelled to-day.

Collecting antiquated punctuation marks isn't as popular as acquiring old Wedgwood, classic cars or baseball cards. For one thing, there's no market for antique punctuation. But I like it as a hobby because it doesn't take up any room. Any unused corner of my mind will do to store it in and I'm fortunate in having a mind with a lot of unused space in it.

So now that you're entranced by the romance of collecting old punctuation marks, I'd like you to see my exhibit of that endangered species the dieresis. I can't show you an actual one because on typesetting equipment for mass production, the dieresis is already extinct. There's no dieresis button to push on the machine, which is the reason it's extinct. We'll have to use a : instead, turn it on its side, and then place it over a vowel.

The dieresis, you may recall, used to hang over the second "e" in the word cooperative, for example, people wouldn't go "round and round" cooperate. Either people got brighter and stopped saying coop-er-ate or nobody cares anymore how you say it. Naive is still supposed to wear one over the i, if you can find one to put up there. Re-elect goes along without one by jamming a hyphen between the two e's. But the fact is, you can hardly find dieresis in good condition anymore except in $49 books.

AILSA DEWING

AND WHAT NOT

For you decide to start your own collection of old punctuation marks, however, there are some things you need to know. All the surplus punctuation marks you find lying around aren't necessarily authentic antiques. Take the periods that got stuck in between T and V, for instance. They're fakes. TV isn't an abbreviation for Television. There are scads of phony apostrophes piling up, too, from writers using the contraction it's for the possessive its. These are illegal and should be turned over to the nearest English teacher. (If there isn't an English teacher near you, this is part of your problem.)

How does a punctuation mark get to be obsolescent, some of you may be still awake enough to ask. Good question. But no answer. The latest change in punctuation aren't displayed in the office — like special issue stamps or pictures of wanted criminals. They are the result of time and usage. Maybe they went out. Or maybe English teachers wear out trying to get pupils to use them. Or maybe they just get mixed and nobody notices until it's too late to matter.

For those of you who now think you'd like to be old punctuation mark collectors, a good item to start collecting is the semi-colon, which looks like ;. These are used to connect two related independent clauses. Then along came TV and nobody had time to read long sentences tied together. There is only time to read short simple sentences during commercials. Newspapers also tend toward being simple these days and use either two short sentences or keep sentences totally unrelated.

Letvin to treat children

BELLE GLADE—As part of its continuing audience development program, Regional Arts Foundation will return the celebrated pianist, Theodore Letvin, for over 6,000 school children during November.

On Thursday, Nov. 11 at 7:30 p.m., Letvin will be performing on the piano for an audience of children and parents at the Dolly Hand Cultural Arts Center. He will perform Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition" and other works. Tickets for this event are $2 for adults and $1 for students or children. Reserved seats may be secured by calling the Palm Beach Junior College at 996-3056.

Mr. Letvin is donating his services for this special family concert to stimulate interest in the arts in the West area of Palm Beach County.

In addition to his past concert appearances in the Palm Beaches, Letvin has a unique tie to this area in that during World War II he was stationed in the Palm Beaches and was barracked at the old Baltimore Hotel.

Last October he appeared before almost 2,500 school children at the West Palm Beach Auditoriums and at Glades Central School.

Letvin's return is the beginning of this season's Young Folks Development projects which are sponsored by Regional Arts Foundation, the Palm Beach County School Board, the Palm Beach Community Foundation, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Baumritter, IATSE Local 623, stagehands union and in part by the National Endowment for the Arts and the State of Florida, Department of State, Division of Cultural Affairs and the Florida Arts Council.

Lake Shore FFA elects new officers

The Lake Shore Chapter of Future Farmers of America held an inaugural meeting Tuesday to elect officers and plan for this year's activities.

The club plans trips to several contests this year, beginning with the Livestock and Dairy Judging Contest at the South Florida Fair in February.

"We plan to practice hard to improve on our high score in Dairy Judging last year," said newly elected president, Tony Kendrick. "We think our sponsors are teaching us the things we'll need to win this year."

The Lake Shore Chapter's new officers are as follows:

President—Tony Kendrick; Vice President—Tommy Gilbert; Treasurer—Tony McConaughay; Secretary—Jerry Gurganousi.

The local chapter's sponsors are James Harrington and Hiawatha Plair.

Mrs. Wedgeworth new PBJC Foundation member

BELLE GLADE—Ruth S. Wedgeworth, Belle Glade, president of Wedgeworth's Inc., was recently elected to the Palm Beach Junior College Foundation, according to Mary McKenzie Montgomery, president.

Mrs. Wedgeworth, who attended Michigan State University, has Honorary Doctor of Laws and Honorary Doctor of Humanities Degress from the University of Florida. She is a member of the Belle Glade Woman's Club, the Belle Glade Garden Study Club, as well as PEO and Beta Sigma Phi.

Her three children include: Mrs. J.T. Boynton (Helen Jean); George H. Wedgeworth; and Mrs. John Oetzman (Barbara).

Eleanor Roosevelt play set

BELLE GLADE—FIRST LADY, Performing Arts Repertory Theatre's new musical about Eleanor Roosevelt, will be playing at Dolly Hand Cultural Arts Center on Friday, Nov. 12 at 8:30 and 11:00 o'clock under the auspices of the Palm Beach Junior College.

This lively, fascinating show spans the years from Eleanor's childhood through 1928, when her husband, Franklin, decided to run for governor of New York State.

FIRST LADY tells the touching story of Eleanor's struggle to overcome the shyness and unhappiness of her girlhood and portrays her eventual triumph as a young woman of great strength and character — the quintessential humanitarian who won the hearts of all who knew her. People of such a colorful Roosevelts as her charming father, Elliott; the dashing young Franklin; the tempestuous Alice; and even a touch of President Teddy, this high-spirited musical is a warm and very moving tribute to a great lady.

The show opens on Eleanor's lonely childhood and her boarding school days in England. Upon return to America, she becomes interested in social work in New York City's slums and then meets handsome young FDR. As different as they are in temperament, outlook, and style, they fall in love and marry.

From there Eleanor's story follows a fascinating series of twists and turns as her pioneering mother-in-law, her growing family, and the pressures of FDR's public life make great and unexpected demands on her. Her choices the faces and the decisions she makes give this marvelous story an uplifting, triumphant ending.

Written by the same team who created PART'S hit, TEDDY ROOSEVELT, FIRST LADY is a splendid combination of a memorable story, colorful characters and outstanding music.

Gone is last Lake Middle Glass Day Christian Day, St. Peters, Rosenwald and Gladview are some of the schools who have made reservations to see this production. Tickets are $2.00 per student.

Asolo to present 'Angel Street' at Cultural Arts Center

FLORIDA—Five veteran Asolo State Theater actors are ready to keep you on the edges of your seats with sheer terror when "Angel Street," Asolo's 1982 mainstage thriller, begins one-night performances in Belle Glade at the Dolly Hand Cultural Arts Center on Friday, Nov. 5 with curtain at 8 p.m., under the local sponsorship of Palm Beach Junior College.

Reserved seats for this masterpiece of suspense and intrigue may be secured by phoning 996-3055 or by visiting the college or the Golden Charm Jewelers. Tickets are on sale now for $7.00.

"Angel Street" also known as "Gaslight," is the gripping tale of how a beautiful young woman falls into the trap of her charming but diabolical husband, Jack Manningham, until police Inspector Rough comes on the scene to help solve the puzzle of a 15-year old murder and a fortune in missing rubies.

Adding to the action are the kind housekeeper, Elizabeth; and the insulating maid, Nancy. Asolo's cast for this production is a stellar production is a stellar company member for 14 seasons is joyously welcomed back to Asolo's resident company after a year-and-a-half's hiatus in the "business" world.

Patricia Oetken (Bell) Manningham) delighted Asolo '79 audiences with various roles.

The New York based actress most recently appeared as Helene in "Look Back In Anger" at the Separate Theatre Company, and was featured in television's "Texas" and "Another World."

Bradford Wallace (Inspector Ronge), Asolo's Resident Actor/Teacher for nine years and a beloved company member for 14 seasons is joyously welcomed back to Asolo's resident company after a year-and-a-half's hiatus in the "business" world.

Dr. Moreau to be presented by GDS

BELLE GLADE—"Crazy Mixed-Up Island of Dr. Moreau" was recently presented by the Glades Day School Junior High Drama Club.

This wild comedy spoof based on the H.G. Wells classic, The Island of Dr. Moreau, was performed for elementary and junior high school students Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 20 and 21.

The part of Dr. Moreau, the mad scientist, was played by Jesse Hammel while Russ Poole portrayed Montgomery, an unwilling helper. Amy Crooch was as Dr. Moreau's admiring person.

Other members of the cast included Diego Hernandez as a Pekinese pup now in human form; Lori Blanchard, Marcia Garcia, Mackie Gomez, and Tom Schleicher, a group of show people shipwrecked on the island; Tony Agnew, Claudia Bueno, Bryan Burch, Jeri-Ann Haulcomb, and Eric Pitts as the Beast-People. Olga Hayes as a love-sick canine; Tommy Dodge as Thing-from-the-Forest; and Susan Meeks as Person-from-the-Mailboat. Russ Poole played the theme song "Give My Regards to Broadway," on his electric guitar.

Mr. William M. Bremer, directed the production and Jeanette Gonzalez and Marta Latour were the assistants.

A PINCH OF SALT

Rev. Robert W. Carlson

A PINCH OF SALT. To you that may seem like a strange title for a newspaper column, but it clearly expresses my purpose for writing these articles.

Salt has always been used as an effective preservative of food. Since we live in a time of spiritual, moral, and social and economic decay, it is my prayer that the words of this column will help to preserve your life and family.

Salt is a powerful antiseptic. We gargle salt water for a sore throat, and the staff of an Emergency Room washes an open wound with a saline solution because salt possesses healing properties. May the words of this column bring healing to your heart and mind.

Salt is the most commonly used seasoning; food never tastes quite right without it. And it makes you thirsty. That's what I want this column to accomplish. As you read these articles, I hope life will just be a little bit more flavorful, and you will begin to thirst more than ever for the living water that Jesus offers.

Man killed while directing traffic

SOUTH BAY A 22 year old man was killed when an automobile struck him as he directed traffic Sunday, October 31.

According to Florida Highway Patrol reports, Jean Alcinder of 528 SW B Place was struck by an unknown vehicle as he flagged traffic at the intersection of US 27 and county road 827 at about 2 p.m. on Halloween.

Lido Club burns down Tuesday

PAHOKEE The landmark Lido Club on 441 just outside the Pahokee City limits burst to the ground early Tuesday morning, November 2.

The Pahokee, Canal Point and state forestry service fire departments battled the blaze from about 1:15 a.m. to 5:30 a.m. in a successful effort to prevent the fire from spreading to surrounding structures, according to Pahokee Fire Chief Cecil Phillips.

The county sheriff's office is taking charge of the fire.

Funeral services held for Bentley

VIRGIL BENTLEY.

Virgil Bentley, 71, residing at the Belle Glade Country Club on State Rd. 717, died October 27, at St. Mary's Hospital in West Palm Beach. He was a native of Lynn, Kentucky and came to Belle Glade 10 years ago from Troy, Ohio. During World War II Mr. Bentley served in the U.S. Army as Private First Class. He served with the 236th General Hospital as Medical Aidman in the European Theatre. Prior to his retirement, he was employed by the Brothers Meat Packing Company in Troy, Ohio.

His survivors include three brothers: Cecil I. Bentley of South Bay, Benjamin J. Bentley of Troy, Ohio, and Ishmael Bentley of Troy, Ohio. Three sisters: Phyllis Hughes of Belle Glade, Edna Collette and Thelma Abdon of Troy, Ohio.

Funeral services were held at the Mixon Funeral Home November 1st at 10 a.m. with Rev. F.T. Mason, pastor of the Church of God in Belle Glade, officiating.

Pallbearers were: Tom Mansen, Dennis Bentley, Lonny Joe Hughes, Johnny Bender, Ronnie Bentley, Tommy Miller and Danny Ray Hartwick.

Interment followed at Port Mayaca Cemetery in Martin County. Mixon Funeral Home in Belle Glade was in charge of arrangements.

Flu season is approaching because they are at greatest risk of complications or death if they catch influenza. To illustrate the seriousness of this disease, it is estimated that more than 200,000 people in the United States have died as a result of the influenza epidemics in the past 14 years.

Influenza vaccine has been manufactured for the 1982/83 fall and winter season. It contains three strains of influenza which are likely to cause disease in the U.S. (A/Brazil/A/Bangkok, B/Singapore) and those adults 65 years of age and older should be vaccinated that even if a person received influenza vaccine last year, he should be re-vaccinated because the protective effects of the vaccination usually last no more than one year.

Most people have no side effects from vaccination, although some experienced redness and swelling at the injection site for 1-2 days. Fever and muscle aches have occurred in less than 4% of the recipients. There is a possibility that allergic reactions could occur, but they are rare.

It should be noted that even if a person received influenza vaccine last year, he should be re-vaccinated

because the protective effects of the vaccination

usually last no

Gove sponsors deaf workshop

BELLE GLADE - A workshop for the hearing impaired was held Oct. 27 in the Exceptional Child Education Center (ECE) at Gove Elementary.

Linda Bassin, a representative of Medico Surgical Supply Company in North Miami Beach, demonstrated the TTY Communication System to the group of students, parents and teachers on hand for the workshop.

Mrs. Bassin said the TTY communicator allows people with severe communication handicaps, those who are deaf, hearing impaired and speech impaired, to communicate through the use of the telephone, typewriter system.

As the communicating person types, their words travel across an electronic readout display and are simultaneously transmitted through the telephone by tonal beeps and appear in large green letters on the other TTY.

Mrs. Bassin told the group that the telephone company offers discount rates for long distance calls made via the TTY System "because they recognize that it takes longer to type a phone conversation than to talk."

Hearing Impaired Instructor for Lake Shore and Gladview Elementary, Sandy Cook, demonstrated
